Note on Methodology introduced for 2006

Bowker employed a new methodology for 2006 to report the annual title output statistics. The older methodology had focused on books with prices and with subject classifications to report on trends in average price and in market segments.

To obtain a more accurate picture of total title output, the following enhancements were made for the 2006 statistics:

- The total count now includes ISBNs that have not been assigned a subject (included as non-traditional/unclassified items).
- The count now includes ISBNs without prices.
- A number of additional book bindings were added to the counts. For example, Stapled and Laminated.

To provide comparable prior year data, the numbers for 2002-2005 data were restated using the new methodology.

*Non-traditional/unclassified consists of reprints (often public domain), other titles printed on-demand, and wiki-based material. The number also includes records received too late to receive subject classification and/or ISBNs that were not classifiable.
